Prosecutors brought 18 indictments against the R&B singer.

R&B singer R. Kelly pleaded not guilty on Tuesday to a raft of federal charges accusing him of running a scheme to force women and girls to provide sex for himself and others, and a judge ordered that he remain in jail without bail.

A federal judge said the main reason he was denying bail was obstruction of justice charges, part of a multi-count indictment unveiled on Friday in Chicago and New York.

Wearing an orange prison jumpsuit and handcuffed at a hearing in federal court, R. Kelly entered his plea of not guilty and answered "yes, sir," to all of U.S. District Judge Harry Leinenweber's questions. He made no eye contact with supporters in the Chicago courtroom.

"Kelly is an extreme danger to the community, especially teenage girls," federal prosecutor Angel Kroll argued. "Mr. Kelly has done extensive obstruction of justice."

Prosecutors brought 18 indictments against the Grammy Award-winning artist with allegations he preyed on teenagers and young women for two decades, forcing them into sexual acts.

Kelly and his entourage are accused of paying hundreds of thousands of dollars in bribes, using intimidation and even giving a car to one victim to keep them quiet, all part of the obstruction of justice charges.

The singer's lawyer Steve Greenberg has said the charges stem from "decades-old" conduct and were already part of an existing Illinois sexual assault case or previous allegations that resulted in Kelly's acquittal.

Greenberg said R. Kelly was not a flight risk as he spent all his time in his one-bedroom apartment on the 48th floor of the Trump Tower in Chicago and had no money.

"If he was going to flee he would have done so already," Greenberg said in court.

Two women who say they've been in a consensual relationship with R. Kelly were at the hearing, but did not speak in court or comment to reporters.

The women, Joycelyn Savage and Azriel Clary, expressed their support for the singer this week in a video posted on entertainment news site TMZ.

Best known for his hits "Bump n' Grind" and "I Believe I Can Fly," R. Kelly faces a maximum prison sentence of over 190 years for the Chicago charges and decades more for those filed in New York. He is already fighting sexual assault charges in Illinois that could put him behind bars for up to 30 years.

The singer and record producer faces charges dating back as far as

"Kelly is an extreme danger to the community, especially teenage girls."

Federal prosecutor Angel Kroll

1998 for counts ranging from enticing a minor, to producing child pornography and obstruction of justice.

Celebrity lawyer Michael Avenatti, who says he represents three of Kelly's victims, on Monday said the singer paid over $2 million to keep one young woman off the stand in his 2008 trial on child pornography charges, in which he was acquitted.

"The difference between his old cases and now is that his victims are cooperating with law enforcement," said prosecutor Kroll. REUTERS

Three dead, four missing in Canada float plane crash

2 Three people were dead and four missing after a float plane crashed into a lake in a remote part of northeastern Canada, a charter airline service said on Tuesday. Seven people were aboard the de Havilland DHC-2 Beaver plane operated by Air Saguenay, a small charter airline based in Quebec. The plane crashed in Labrador, part of Newfoundland and Labrador on the eastern coast of Canada. The seven people aboard were the pilot, two guides and four passengers on a fishing expedition. When the airplane had not arrived by 8 p.m., the airline began emergency procedures, including sending a second plane on a search mission. After an unsuccessful hour, the company notified the Joint Rescue Coordination Centre (JRCC), the arm of the Canadian military responsible for search and rescue, which sent out a C-130 Hercules plane at around midnight. ## Former tenant charged in killing of civil rights activist

3 A former tenant of a Baton Rouge civil rights activist has been arrested and charged with her murder, police said on Tuesday. Baton Rouge detectives arrested Ron Jermaine Bell in the killing of Sadie Roberts-Joseph, 75, whose body was found stuffed in the trunk of her car on Friday afternoon, Police Chief Murphy Paul told a news conference. Bell was one of Roberts-Joseph's tenants and was behind on about $1,200 in rent,

Paul said. The suspect was already in jail in East Baton Rouge Parish for failing to register as a sex offender when police linked him to the murder, said Sheriff Sid J. Gautreaux, III, at the same news conference. Roberts-Joseph's death was ruled a homicide by the East Baton Rouge Parish Coroner's Office on Monday. A preliminary summary of the autopsy found that her death was caused by "traumatic asphyxia, including suffocation." REUTERS

HBO, 'Game of Thrones' lead Emmy Awards noms

4 HBO and its medieval fantasy blockbuster "Game of Thrones" led nominations, as expected, on Tuesday for the Emmy Awards, but the list of contenders for the highest honors in television was dominated by newcomers, many of them women. The 2019 lineup for the Emmys represented the widest array of first-time nominees in eight years, the Television Academy said, with nine new shows contending for the top prizes of best drama and best comedy series. They included female-driven BBC America thriller "Killing Eve," which also won nods for stars Jodie Comer and Sandra Oh; dark comedy "Fleabag," from Amazon.com's Amazon Studios, which got 11 nominations including for its British creator and star Phoebe Waller-Bridge; and surreal Netflix time-loop comedy "Russian Doll," written by its star Natasha Lyonne. # Garner family blasts courts as chokehold cop avoids charges Prosecutors decided against charging Daniel Pantaleo in the 2014 death of Eric Garner.

The police officer who put Eric Garner in a fatal chokehold during an attempted 2014 arrest, fueling the rise of the Black Lives Matter movement, will not face federal criminal charges, Brooklyn's top federal prosecutor said Tuesday.

Garner's death on a sidewalk during an arrest for allegedly selling untaxed cigarettes, and his gasped final words "I can't breathe" caught on bystander video, played a key role in the rise of the movement decrying excessive use of force by police officers against black men and teens in the United States.

Garner's family im-

Gwen Carr, the mother of Eric Garner, speaks to the media after a meeting with Justice Department officials. REUTERS mediately blasted the decision clearing Daniel Pantaleo, the officer who put Garner in a prohibited chokehold, in a news conference as a betrayal.

U.S. Attorney Richard Donoghue confirmed the decision at a news conference.

"The death of Eric Garner was a tragedy," Donoghue said. "The job of the federal prosecutor, however, is not to let our emotions dictate our decisions."

A lengthy Department of Justice review of the incident did not reach a conclusive determination as to whether Pantaleo willfully committed misconduct, an "essential element" necessary to bring federal charges, a senior department official told reporters at a briefing in Washington.

The official confirmed that no New York police officer — not just Pantaleo — will face any charges.

After meeting with federal prosecutors in Brooklyn, members of Garner's family held a news conference with civil rights activist Rev. Al Sharpton.

"The DOJ has failed us," said Garner's mother, Gwen Carr, adding that she wanted to see Pantaleo fired. "Five years ago, my son said 'I can't breathe' 11 times, and today we can't breathe because they let us down."

A New York grand jury in 2014 declined to charge Pantaleo, who has been assigned to desk duty since Garner's death and faced a disciplinary trial in May at New York City Police Department headquarters.

A departmental judge is due to make her recommendations to New York Police Commissioner James O'Neill, who will ultimately decide whether to punish Pantaleo. He could lose vacation days or be fired.

The NYPD said its disciplinary process on Pantaleo will not be affected by the federal prosecutors' decision.

The Civilian Complaint Review Board, the city oversight agency that prosecuted the departmental trial against Pantaleo, called the Justice Department's long-delayed decision "an utter travesty."

"Our last hope for justice in this case lies with the Police Commissioner," CCRB Chairman Fred Davie said in a statement. "CCRB prosecutors presented evidence at trial that showed — unequivocally — that Officer Pantaleo engaged in misconduct worthy of termination." REUTERS

Heat wave in New York City.

Dangerous heat wave to hit the Northeast this week

A heat index of 105-110 degrees is expected to strike this week.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

A massive heat wave is expected to hit the Northeast this week, forecasters predict.

A majority of the East Coast is expected to be affected by the heat wave through the weekend. Temperatures in New York City and Philadelphia will likely hit a heat index of between 105 and 110 degrees, according to the National Weather Service.

New Yorkers should expect the heat wave to begin Wednesday and last through Monday, July 22. New York City is not under an excessive heat warning, but it is possible for that to change. Forecasters said temperatures in the city will reach the mid-to upper 90s.

The Philadelphia region will get hit a bit harder.

Temps in Philly are expected to reach the high 90s and may spike into the 100s starting Wednesday and lasting through Sunday, the National Weather Service reported. As a result, Philly is under an excessive heat watch, which the National Weather Service defines as a prolonged period of hot temperatures that pose health risks.

"The combination of hot temperatures and high humidity will combine to create a dangerous situation in which heat illnesses are possible," NWS forecasters say.

According to Ready.gov, extreme heat is to blame for the most weather-hazard deaths, annually. Weather.gov defines a heat wave as "a period of unusually hot weather that typically lasts two or more days. To be considered a heat wave, the temperatures have to be outside the historical averages for a given area."

Here's how to stay safe during a heat wave, according to FEMA: Find air conditioning, avoid doing anything strenuous, wear light clothing, check on neighbors and family, drink a ton of fluids, and never leave anyone including your pets in the car. Pay attention to those around you to see if they are suffering from heat illnesses such as heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heatstroke.

If someone is suffering from heat cramps, they will likely have muscle pains or spasms primarily in their arms, legs or stomachs. To help anyone suffering from heat cramps, FEMA suggests going to a cooler location, removing excess clothing, followed by sipping on cool sports drinks with salt and sugar.

In case you're worried

NWS forecasters

someone is suffering from heat exhaustion, some symptoms include: heavy sweating, cramps, sleepiness, weakness, paleness, dizziness, nausea or vomiting, fainting, and headaches. FEMA suggests those suffering from heat exhaustion find a cool location, rest, and hydrate. If symptoms persist for an hour, or get worse, seek medical attention.

If someone is having a heatstroke, they will likely have a high body temperature (over 103 degrees, according to FEMA); skin that is red, hot, dry and has no sweat; a strong pulse; and suffer from confusion. They could be unconscious or dizzy, as well. If someone is suffering from heatstroke, they are urged to go to a hospital or call 911, and cool down while awaiting help.

Citi Bike four-borough expansion plans announced

The expansion will bring the bike-sharing service to far more New Yorkers.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

The popular Citi Bike program is set to get an extensive expansion throughout four city boroughs.

The de Blasio administration on Tuesday announced that over the next five years, Citi Bike will double its service area and triple its bike fleet. By 2023, the expansion will bring Citi Bike to all of Manhattan, as well as into the Bronx, and deeper into Brooklyn and Queens.

City officials hope the access to bikes will improve economic outcomes for lower-income residents, boost people's health, and shorten commute times.

"With double the territory and triple the number of bikes over the next few years, Citi Bike will become an even better option for travel around New York City," Mayor de Blasio said of the expansion, which is being funded by a $100 million investment from Lyft.

Until now, Citi Bike has only been available in some parts of Manhattan and Brooklyn, and just a fraction of Queens.

Citi Bike has already begun its expansion, starting with 25 new stations along the L-train corridor in East Williamsburg and Bushwick. New stations will pop up in Bed-Stuy, Brownsville, Crown Heights, Prospect Lefferts Gardens, East Flatbush, Sunset Park, South Slope, Windsor Terrace, Prospect Park South, and Kensington.

Within the next few months, the city will break ground on new stations in Queens neighborhoods Sunnyside, Maspeth, Elmhurst, Jackson Heights, and Corona.

In the Bronx, Mott Haven, Melrose, Port Morris, Highbridge, Claremont, Morrisania, Longwood, Concourse, and Mt. Eden will be getting stations.

To round out Manhattan's Citi Bike program, an expansion will take place in Harlem, Hamilton Heights, Sugar Hill, Washington Heights, and Inwood.

Have you tried out Citi Bike yet?

BESS ADLER / METRO

"Citi Bike is an effective, healthy and sustainable mode of transportation for many New Yorkers, and I'm thrilled this next phase will give even more New Yorkers the opportunity to bike around the five boroughs," Speaker Corey Johnson said of the expansion.

But the project doesn't come without concern. So far this year, 15 city cyclists have been killed on city streets.

Mayor de Blasio

"... as biking becomes more popular we must make sure we make it safe to ride in New York City. I look forward to working with the Department of Transportation on establishing an connected network of protected bike lanes..." Johnson added.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

Sports betting arrives in state, but only at upstate casinos

The first legal sports bets in New York state will be placed this week.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

New York City sports bettors now have plenty of options when it comes to legally wagering, but the downside is that all of those options involve a small or significant amount of travel.

Sportsbooks at Rivers Casino in Schenectady, New York, and Tioga Downs in Nichols, New York, are set to open this week, with books at del Lago in the Finger Lakes and Resorts World Catskills soon to follow. All are at least two hours from Manhattan.

More convenient for those in the city looking to place a bet on sports is neighboring New Jersey, which has both online betting and physical locations available. The top retail sportsbook in the country in terms of revenue, outside of Nevada, has been the FanDuel Sportsbook location at MetLife Stadium at the Meadowlands as it has been attracting a hefty amount of New Yorkers.

Sports betting has been legal in New Jersey for a full year now, and the state is already challenging Nevada for the top handle in the nation. Over the past 12 months, the Garden State has taken over $3.2 billion in sports bets. An estimated 80 percent of those bets were done on mobile devices.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo has been in favor of legalizing sports betting at the upstate casinos but has been against the mobile component. New York state Sen. Joseph Addabbo Jr. and Assemblymember J. Gary Pretlow, meanwhile, have been pushing to amend legislation so that online sports betting is also available to New Yorkers moving forward.

"Billions of New Yorkers' dollars are being wagered on sports in the black market," Pretlow said in June. "By enabling the mobile sports wagering component, we will be able to capture a majority of this illicit practice while further protecting our consumers."

Judge bans Trump ex-adviser Roger Stone from making social media posts

A visibly irritated federal judge on Tuesday banned President Donald Trump's former adviser Roger Stone from posting on social media after prosecutors accused Stone of violating a gag order by repeatedly discussing his case on his Instagram account.

U.S. District Court Judge Amy Berman Jackson said she would not jail Stone for violating the order, saying holding a contempt hearing, which could result in jail time or a fine, would only generate more media attention that could affect potential jurors.

She also blasted Stone and his lawyers.

"Your lawyer had to twist the facts, twist the plain meaning of an order and twist himself into a pretzel" to argue that the posts did not violate her order, the judge told Stone, adding that she could revisit her decision if Stone violates her orders again.

"So what am I supposed to do with you?" Jackson asked, noting she is "wrestling with behavior that has more to do with middle school than a court of law."

During the hearing, Jackson spent about an hour painstakingly reading each one of his posts aloud and asking Stone's attorney Bruce Rogow if they violated her gag order, before taking an hour recess to weigh how she would rule.

One post, she said, featured a photo of Adam Schiff, the Democratic chairman of the House of Representatives Intelligence Committee, next to a meter saying "bullSchiff."

Stone, a longtime Republican political strategist and self-described "agent provocateur" and "dirty trickster," is accused by prosecutors of lying to House Intelligence Committee investigators looking into Russian interference in the 2016 U.S. presidential election, as well as tampering with witnesses.

Jackson said Stone referred to Schiff as a "duplicious con man" before adding: "If it's Schiff, flush it." The judge then asked if the post was in "contravention" of her order.

Rogow told Jackson he did not think any of the posts violated the judge's prior order, adding: "I am sorry the court is offended by these things."

House condemns Trump's tweets on freshman 'squad'

Nancy Pelosi referred to the comments as "racist."

The House voted on Tuesday to condemn President Donald Trump for racially charged attacks against four Democratic congresswomen of color, a symbolic vote aimed at shaming Trump and his fellow Republicans who stood by him.

Four Republicans joined every Democrat and one independent in voting to rebuke the president for his Sunday tweetstorm, in which he told the group of congresswomen to "go back and help fix the totally broken and crime-infested places from which they came."

President Donald Trump pressured fellow Republicans in the U.S. House of Representatives on Tuesday to support him and vote against a symbolic measure condemning his racially charged attacks on four Democratic congresswomen of color.

Outrage sparked by Trump's Sunday tweetstorm has since diverted attention from all other business in Washington.

All four lawmakers are U.S. citizens; three were born in the United States.

"These comments from the White House are disgraceful and disgusting and these comments are racist," Speaker Nancy Pelosi said on the floor of the House.

Pelosi's speech sparked a two-hour limbo on the floor after Republicans argued she broke debate rules by characterizing the president as racist. House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer eventually ruled that Pelosi had gone too far on the House floor.

Trump and Republican leaders canceled a late-afternoon meeting as the drama wore on.

A relatively small group of Republican lawmakers have spoken out against Trump's tweets about the congresswomen:

en: Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez of New York, Ilhan Omar of Minnesota, Ayanna Pressley of Massachusetts and Rashida Tlaib of Michigan.

Their criticism has been muted. But the House vote will force them to either stand against their party's leader, who has strong support among conservatives, or effectively defend him.

House Republican leadership recommended members vote against the resolution, which says the House "strongly condemns President Donald Trump's racist comments that have legitimized and increased fear and hatred of new Americans and people of color."

"It's all politics," House Republican Leader Kevin McCarthy told reporters. Trump later retweeted McCarthy's comments and thanked him. REUTERS

Lou Barlow on Sebadoh's intense new album, 'Act Surprised'

We spoke with the indie-rock legend ahead of the band's show in town next week.

patrick.king@metro.us

For over 30 years, musician and songwriter Lou Barlow has been one of the most hard-working and influential musicians in all of indie rock. Barlow first came on the scene playing bass and acting as the secondary frontman in Dinosaur Jr. behind the distinctive slow drawl and guitar wizardry of the band's leader, J. Mascis. In the late '80s, however, Barlow formed the band Sebadoh, which let him spread his wings as a songwriter more freely. The band recently released their 13th album, "Act Surprised," this past May, which finds them as energized and vital as ever.

While Barlow writes the occasional song or two on each Dinosaur Jr. record that he appears on, Sebadoh acts more as an equal songwriting partnership between Barlow and bassist Jason Loewenstein. For this record, both Barlow and Loewenstein brought songs to the table that reflected both of their views on the current state of the world, as well as songs that provided perspective on difficult times in their lives that they were not able to voice clearly on their 2013 album, "Defend Yourself." In fact, in the time since recording that last album, both Barlow and Loewenstein went through painful divorces with their wives, and have since remarried.

"I found it was a very dark record," says Barlow, looking back on that album. "I had just left my first wife. It had just occurred when we were making that record. It lacked perspective because it was happening as the situation was unfolding. But I think where we are right now, we're both remarried. It's a pretty monumental shift with us. Both of us are lyrically looking outward."

The lyrical content on the album mirrors that completely. The emotional components approach the subjects with wisdom, while the social commentary comes off as informed frustration as opposed to anger for anger's sake. Songs like "See-Saw" find Barlow pleading for a society that has been desensitized to others' suffering to put down their phones for enough time to care. "Blame your victim, it's a lazy day," the song goes. "To act on impulse and call it brave."

"To me, that's a song about people losing compassion," says Barlow by phone. "It is about communication and this strange period that we're in where people are adjusting to the effects of social media on their lives. It's a very mixed-up time."

These intense emotions carry over to the music, as "Act Surprised" is the most energized and on-fire the band has sounded in years. But with Barlow's busy schedule with Dinosaur Jr., he wasn't sure if there would even be another Sebadoh record, let alone one as fantastic as this one.

"I was not optimistic, that's all I can say!" Barlow says with a laugh. "There were some intervening years where I didn't know if we could reconvene. Luckily we did. We're over the 10-year mark now just as playing together. It takes a long time for a band — at least in my experience, it takes a while before you really intuitively play with each other. I knew this band had some great instrumental strengths and I really hoped that we could capture the energy in a crackling environment. Just someplace where we could capture the energy of the three-piece. The right analogy would be some kind of plant or a tree, I don't know [laughs]. I think of it in terms of a macadamia bush, for instance. The valued macadamia nut is delicious, buttery and nutritious. But the factoid is that I think it takes 17 years before they produce the nut. You plant them and you have to have patience and wait until it bears this amazing thing. I guess with us, I knew that in the beginning."

With all of the constant hard work Barlow has put in over the years, he has barely had the time to poke his head above water to notice the profound effect his waves have created after he jumped into playing music. To keep up this water metaphor, he cited a piece of wisdom he once heard from one of alternative music's forefathers: Mike Watt of the Minutemen.

"Mike Watt has a really cool way of describing this as it's just this river," says Barlow. "It's this flowing river of music and inspiration and being a part of that is what you're really after. You're after just being a part of the flow. Then it becomes less about people imitating you and it becomes more about inspiring people in some way. I think with Sebadoh, our inspiration has largely been philosophical. I don't hear bands that sound like Sebadoh in the same way that they sound like Pavement. We haven't had a particular sound. Just to be a part of it is a huge thing and that's kind of it."

How a Japanese 'sleeping time machine' aims to ease NYC's sleep woes

Here's what happened when I tried the Zeccho Sleep Treatment at NYC's Goku spa.

morgan@metro.us

This sleep-deprived new mother cherishes every minute of shut-eye. So when I had a chance to experience a "sleep treatment" — during work hours, no less — it was hard to say no.

Goku, a new "sleeping time machine" spa in Midtown, specializes in Zeccho, a $150 scalp massage created by a Japanese accountant who was once so sleep deprived, she fell asleep in a work meeting.

ALL PHOTOS GOKU

"That was a bad experience, so I started thinking about how to fix my difficulty sleeping at night," said Goku owner, Atsumi Kaneda, through a translator.

About a decade ago, Kaneda created the Zeccho head massage with the help of acupuncturists, doctors and estheticians. Since opening the first Goku spa in Kyoto in 2008, the waiting list has grown to more than 436,000 people, according to Kaneda.

And because of New York's sleepless reputation, Kaneda decided to open a location at 18 W. 38th St. Having worked for years in a culture that places a high value on long work hours, Kaneda developed the massage to be particularly useful to people suffering from stress, work burnout, worry and constant computer use (yeah, welcome to New York).

Here's how it works: A Goku esthetician aligns the hands and fingers to provide "perfect pressure" on the scalp, releasing tension in muscles around the head and eye areas. The technique is meant to promote blood circulation, resulting in relaxation of the mind and body. Goku's promise, at the very least, is reduced stress levels. At best? You fall asleep within 10 minutes of the treatment.

"Sometimes it is a very light sleep, where you are drifting in and out," said Kaneda.

Goku promises that clients will emerge with a euphoric feeling, and go home to enjoy a higher quality of sleep for several nights.

My Goku esthetician, Yoshie Suzuki, greeted me at the entrance of the futuristic spa, offering water and a gentle warning. "I'll also be massaging your chest, shoulders and ears. Is that OK?" It was more than OK, and in fact, the ear reflexology was the highlight of the treatment. My first assumption was that the scalp massage would be similar to the tingly goodness of a frenzied shampooing at a hair salon, but it wasn't so. Instead, Suzuki slowly applied pressure with the tips of her fingers, without the use of oils.

So did I fall asleep during the massage? No. But between the cushiony recliner, darkened room, ethereal music, and fleece blanket, it's clear why people drift off during the treatment. To my delight, though, sleep came quickly that night, and I enjoyed a much deeper slumber than usual — for as long as my little one let me.

Keeping a child calm or entertained is a difficult task, but baby bouncer 4moms mamaRoo provides comfort using five motion settings. It can play preprogrammed nature sounds or connect to any MP3 player. It also has overhead toy balls and can bend to almost any angle.

During bedtime it is important to make sure that everything is going as planned. To help with this task, Cube AI, a smart baby monitor, was created. It features a proactive warning system that alerts when baby cries, rolls, covers his face or when it approaches a risk area of the crib.

Parents know how important it is to have the baby bottle at the right temperature. It is possible to achieve it with liamo Go, a smart gadget with a self-warming function that uses a disposable, one-time-use heating cartridge.

Not all mothers have the possibility of breastfeeding their babies. For parents of formula-fed babies there is a BabyNes system, a Nestlé Nespresso-type machine that whips up a single serving of baby formula with the simple push of a button.

Being aware of your child's breathing and temperature is vital during at least the first few months; Smart Sock by Owlet helps to monitor that. This gizmo can be comfortably wrapped around your baby's foot to track heart rate, oxygen levels and sleep using clinically-proven pulse oximetry which sends the information directly to your smartphone.

What should Mets do with Zack Wheeler?

The veteran righty's trade value plummeted after going on the IL with shoulder fatigue.

JOE PANTORNO

When it rains, it pours.

The New York Mets can't even sell correctly as one of their biggest trade chips, starting pitcher Zack Wheeler, looks to be off the table this summer.

The righty was placed on the 10-day injured list, retroactive Friday, due to shoulder fatigue. That makes the earliest possible date for Wheeler to get back on the mound Jul. 23, just eight days before the trade deadline.

With at most two possible starts available before Jul. 31, it wouldn't be enough time for the Mets to prove that Wheeler is healthy and worthy of a maximum return.

Zack Wheeler #45 of the New York Mets

GETTY IMAGES

Wheeler's durability has often been called into question after missing two entire seasons following Tommy John Surgery. Since 2014, he's made 20 or more starts just once.

Granted, the return wasn't set to be too much, anyway. The 29-year-old righty will be a free agent at season's end and the price for rentals has significantly decreased over the past few seasons. Sellers aren't just going to be handed top prospects by contenders any-

The Mets have been burned by this notion plenty before with recent firesales having failed to yield much.

Over the past few years, the likes of Jeurys Familia, Addison Reed, Jay Bruce (the first time), Asdrubal Cabrera, Lucas Duda, and Neil Walker have been traded for low-level, low-skill prospects.

The return for Wheeler would have been just as underwhelming, especially since his 2019 season has been a shell of the second half of his 2018 campaign.

Wheeler turned heads last season when he went 10-1 with a 2.06 ERA in his final 15 outings. The impressive finish suggested that he was finally going to meet expectations placed on him when the Mets acquired him from the San Francisco Giants for Carlos Beltran in 2011.

That hasn't been the case, however, as Wheeler is 6-6 with a 4.69 ERA on a Mets team struggling to stay 10 games under .500.

At this point, it might be best for the Mets to retain Wheeler for at least another year.

Seeing as 2019 isn't going anywhere near the way both parties wanted it to go, Wheeler will likely not get the big contract he was hoping for this winter.

A one-year deal could work for both parties as Wheeler could prove to the rest of the league in 2020 that he can be a top-end starter, allowing the Mets to get a bigger trade return.

Knicks make Morris, Bullock signings official

The New York Knicks made a pair of signings official on Tuesday, announcing the arrivals of shooting guard Reggie Bullock and forward Marcus Morris.

Both deals continued the trend of the Knicks piecing together a veteran presence with cheap deals to support a core built on young, developing talents.

Morris' one-year deal is worth $15 million where he could initially start at the small forward position in front of 2018 lottery pick Kevin Knox.

He initially backed out of a deal with the San Antonio Spurs to join the Knicks which is an indication that he'll be utilized more at Madison Square Garden.

Before he was a reserve power forward for the Boston Celtics, the 29-year-old Morris was the Detroit Pistons' starting small forward from 2015-2017.

That time in Detroit was the best stretch of his career as he averaged 14.1 points and 4.8 rebounds per game.

If the Knicks are hesitant to roll out their all-under-25 lineup of Dennis Smith Jr., RJ Barrett, Knox, Julius Randle, and Mitchell Robinson, Morris will slot in alongside Randle.

The signing of Bullock was a bit more difficult as a medical issue forced the sides to re-work the deal.

After initially agreeing to a two-year, $21 million deal, Bullock's deal with the Knicks will now only be worth $8.2 million, per ESPN's Adrian Wojnarowski.

The undisclosed injury is expected to hold Bullock out for the first month of the regular season.

Bullock, 28, has hit new heights in the last two years. After trudging through his first four NBA seasons, averaging just 3.0 points in 11.1 minutes per game with the Los Angeles Clippers, Phoenix Suns, and Pistons, he was finally given a chance with Detroit.

In nearly 28 minutes per game in 2017-18, Bullock averaged 11.3 points. He put up those same numbers last season with the Pistons and Los Angeles Lakers, putting up a 40.5-percent three-point field goal percentage over the last two years.

Once Bullock is healthy, he'll add depth at the shooting guard position where minutes will be up for grabs between rookie RJ Barrett, Allonzo Trier, and Damyean Dotson.

He can also play at the 3, adding another option alongside Knox, Morris, and Wayne Ellington.

Scoring upgrades still available for quiet Isles

The Islanders are still in desperate need of scoring as the summer rolls on.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Lou Lamoriello and the New York Islanders are playing a dangerous game this summer.

The rest of the Metropolitan Division continues to improve by leaps and bounds, especially their crosstown rivals in the New York Rangers.

An eventful offseason has seen the Rangers add Jacob Trouba and Adam Fox to improve their blue line before drafting Kaapo Kakko with the second pick of the NHL Draft.

Most notably, however, was the signing of star winger Artemi Panarin, who turned down a larger contract from the Islanders to join the Blueshirts.

Panarin seemed to be the Islanders' top option in free agency this summer as Lamoriello has been quiet since Jul. 1.

The Islanders retained captain and left winger Anders Lee while picking up veteran goalie Semyon Varlamov. It prompted star netminder Robin Lehner, who helped carry the Islanders to the playoffs last year, to join the Chicago Blackhawks.

That's been it.

For a team that is in desperate need of goal scoring, it's been an anticlimactic start to the offseason as the offense was a major issue last season.

The Islanders' ranked 12th out of 16 teams in the Eastern Conference with 228 goals scored while their power play was ranked 29th out of 31 NHL teams.

Without a single upgrade to the forward lines while losing their No. 1 goalie does not bode well for the Islanders next season, especially with the rest of the division improving.

It appears the free agency route will continue to be a lost cause until the team's new arena is built at Belmont Park, meaning the Islanders have to utilize the trade market to ensure they remain a play-off contender.

To acquire offensive talent, the Islanders must deal from a position of strength in the form of their defense. Both Nick Leddy and Thomas Hickey are trade chips that could at least get a conversation going with blue-line-needy teams.

With the Wild continuing to continue their shake-up after trading Charlie Coyle, Nino Niederreiter, and Mikael Granlund, Jason Zucker remains a top trade target.

The 27-year-old is coming off a 21-goal season but put up as many as 33 two seasons ago.

The Rangers are also expected to trade Chris Kreider to clear cap space for Panarin and Trouba's contracts. Kreider put up 28 goals last season but it's unlikely the two New York teams would hook up for a trade.

Lamoriello might find a savior in the desert, though, as the Vegas Golden Knights could trade restricted free agent Nikita Gusev due to salary cap issues.

The Russian product has yet to play a single game in the NHL as he attempts to make the jump to North America from the KHL.

Last season with SKA St. Petersburg, the 27-year-old recorded 17 goals and 65 assists (82 points) in just 62 games.
